Hidden Figures by Margot Lee Shetterly

If you liked the hit movie “Hidden Figures,” you may enjoy reading more of the story. Here is the full narrative of the bright, talented African-American women who used slide rules, adding machines, and pencil and paper to support America’s fledgling aeronautics industry, and helped write the equations that would launch rockets, and astronauts, into space.

The Glass Universe by David Sobel

Sobel shares the lesser-known story of the scientific contributions of a group of women working at the Harvard College Observatory from the late 1800s through the mid-20th century, tracing their collection of star observations captured nightly on glass photographic plates that enabled extraordinary discoveries.

Presumption of Guilt by Archer Mayor

A skeleton found encased in a concrete slab at a recently decommissioned nuclear energy site solves a 40-year-old missing persons case but opens up a murder investigation that is complicated by mafia money, a shooting and an abduction.

Just Fine with Caroline by Annie England Noblin

Caroline O’Connor thought she’d left her little hometown for good, but now she’s back, helping to care for her New York-born mother — struck with Alzheimer’s, and prone to saying and doing anything — and her father, the beloved local doctor frustrated he can’t cure his own wife.

Death of a Ghost by M. C. Beaton

Beaton is back with a new mystery featuring Scotland’s cleverest but most unambitious policeman, Hamish Macbeth. Spending an investigative night at a local castle reputed to be haunted, Sergeant Hamish Macbeth and his policeman associate, Clumsy, discover a dead body that suddenly goes missing.

Book Discussion at the Lakefront Community Center

MONDAY, MARCH 13 at 1:15 PM

The Way Life Should Be by Christine Baker Kline

Feeling stuck in her personal life and career, thirty-three-year-old Angela pursues a seemingly idyllic online relationship with a sailing instructor from Maine, relocates there, and learns important truths about understanding her own heart in finding happiness.

Transportation is available! Call the Senior Center at (216) 289-2985 for details.
